

'We' means the NSW Government.

Changes to your clinical support and therapeutic care

At the moment, the Government provides support for people with disability, such as:

- behaviour support

- occupational therapy

- physiotherapy

- speech therapy.

In the future, you will receive this support from a different provider.

This change is part of the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS).

The NDIS is a new way of providing support to people with disability.

The NDIS will give you more choice and control over the support you use.

Your everyday life

Things will not change very much as a result of the change to who provides your support.

You will still receive the same type of support from your new service provider.

Ideally, this will be from the same clinician or therapist.

And, ideally, you will still receive this support in the places you are used to.

Your clinician or therapist

Keeping the same staff who provide your services is very important to us.

The new provider of your supports

We will choose new service providers later this year.

We want to make sure that any new service provider continues to meet your needs.

Can you tell us:

- Which supports and services are most important to you?

- What has been going well and makes you happy?

- What hasn't been going well and makes you sad?

Having your say

We want to know what is important to you.

We also want to know how you like to get information.

Would you like to talk to someone face-to-face?

Would you like to get an email?

Contact us

1800 379 284

www.ndis.nsw.gov.au

This Easy Read document was created by the Information Access Group using PhotoSymbols, stock photography and custom images. The images may not be reused without permission. For any enquiries about the images, please visit www.informationaccessgroup.com.